1O18 Beat-and-Raise Overshadowed by New AMZN Threat, Weak 2O18 EPS Guidance and Lofty Valuation

While Square (SQ) today after the market close released a $1 \mathrm{O}_{18} 8$ report featuring the company's latest quarterly adjusted EBITDA beat and fullyear guidance raise in terms of net and adjusted revenue and adjusted earnings per share, the initial reaction of SQ shares was to move lower. We believe that apparent disconnect can be attributed to three primary factors, with a fourth factor perhaps having some impact as well.

- First, less than two hours before SO released its 1 O 18 report the payment space was shaken by a media report that Amazon (AMZN, Not Rated) in an effort to expand adoption of its online payments service, Amazon Pay, had offered to pass through the discounts it receives on credit-card swipe fees to other retail merchants. The report emerged just days after SQ announced its acquisition of Weebly, a website creation platform, which the company framed as part of its effort to push from in-person payments to omnichannel commerce. In that regard, a more robust push by AMZN into the online payments space is bound to be viewed as a potential headwind for SQ, in our view.
- Second, management's offered $2 \mathrm{O}_{18}$ guidance for SQ's adjusted revenue in a range of $\$ 355 \mathrm{~mm}$ to $\$ 360 \mathrm{~mm}$, the lower end of which exceeded the consensus estimate of $\$ 335 \mathrm{~mm}$. However, the upper end of management's 2 O 18 adjusted EPS guidance of $\$ 0.09$ to $\$ 0.11$ was below the consensus estimate of $\$ 0.12$.
- Third, SQ's lofty valuation - the stock trades at 29x FY20E adjusted EBITDA - has baked into it such high expectations that a report featuring a solid beat-and-raise and attractive volume and revenue growth rates may no longer be sufficient to spark additional share price appreciation, in our view. As such, we are reiterating our Sell recommendation on SQ and price target of $30 based on 20x our FY20E adjusted EBITDA of $$ 662 \mathrm{~mm}$.
- Valuation: Our $30 price target for SQ is based on 20x our FY20E adjusted EBITDA of $$ 662 \mathrm{~mm}$. We believe the company's current multiple is at risk given competitive, credit- and macro-related factors. The multiple we employ is based on comparable company analysis.

- Another factor that may have weighed on SQ's share price during extended trading earlier today was the company's disclosure of the contribution to its operating results from its facilitation of buying and selling of bitcoin on its Square Cash app, a feature that was made available to most of the app's users on January 31. Inasmuch as SQ's stock performance in recent months has been bolstered by enthusiasm surrounding the bitcoin effort, the actual financial impact of the cryptocurrency on the company's results provided a window into how little such transactions may move the needle for the company.
- SQ reported that $$ 34.1 \mathrm{~mm}$ of the $$ 66 \mathrm{gmm}$ in total net revenue it generated during 1 O 18 was derived from bitcoin. At the same time, the costs associated with purchasing the cryptocurrency prior to selling it were $$ 33.9 \mathrm{~mm}$. The upshot was that bitcoin contributed a total of $$ 0.2 \mathrm{~mm}$ of the $$ 307 \mathrm{~mm}$ of the adjusted revenue that the company posted during the quarter.
- While we acknowledge that SQ had only two months of contribution from bitcoin after the full launch of the effort, we also believe the initial figures demonstrated just how dramatic a ramp in bitcoin volumes would be required before the initiative would contribute in a meaningful way to the company's operating performance.
- SQ's total net revenue grew during 1018 by $45 \%$ versus the prior year period. At the same time, the company's year-over-year revenue growth from sellers that generate less than $$ 125 \mathrm{~K}$ in annual gross payment volume (GPV) - a group that represented $53 \%$ of its GPV during the quarter - was $21.7 \%$. As such, we believe the stakes are rising around SQ's efforts to push "upmarket" to serve sellers with more than $$ 125 \mathrm{~K}$ in annual GPV without any compression in transaction margin even as it is bound to face more competition in that space.
- SQ's subscription and services-based revenue increased by $98 \%$ year-overyear to $$ 97 \mathrm{~mm}$ with growth paced by Instant Deposit, Caviar and Square Capital. While Square Capital's loan volume had seemed to plateau in 4Q17 as it had been essentially flat on a sequential basis, it reaccelerated during 1 Q18 by $35 \%$ versus the prior year period to $$ 339 \mathrm{~mm}$.
- We continue to view the expansion of Square Capital as something of a double-edged sword. While it has provided SQ's closely-watched subscription and services-based revenue line item with a boost in the nearterm, we believe that if the company becomes increasingly dependent on credit as a means of driving its growth and reducing its churn, particularly among the larger merchants that represent its fastest-growing segment, it will also become increasingly vulnerable to credit-market volatility. As such, we view the continued expansion of Square Capital - including the potential expansion of the platform if SQ is successful in its pursuit of an industrial loan company (ILC) charter - as a negative for the company's risk profile.
- SQ reported 1Q18 adjusted EBITDA of $$ 36 \mathrm{~mm}$, exceeding the consensus estimate of $$ 33.8 \mathrm{~mm}$ and our estimate of $$ 34.3 \mathrm{~mm}$. The company during the quarter posted adjusted EPS of $$ 0.06$, matching the consensus estimate as well as our estimate.
- SQ's gross payment volume (GPV) increased by 31\% during 1Q18 to $17.8bn.
